On Thursday April Sixth at the Mohican Family Center, the Community Health department hosted an event to inform the community on Radon. They had Jess Maloney from the Department of Health Services there to speak about Radon and answer any questions there might be. She spoke about how you can use a radon mitigation system to decrease the amount of radon in your home. She explained what radon is and how it enters your home. Community health also handed out radon testing kits.

Radon is a naturally occurring radioactive gas. It's produced when uranium, thorium, and radium break down in soil, rock, and water. It's then released into the air. Radon is odorless, tasteless, and invisible. Radon can come up through the ground and into your home through cracks in the foundation. Once it's through the cracks, it can get trapped inside, where it builds up. It can also get into your home through well water. Radon mitigation is any process or system used to reduce radon concentrations in buildings. The goal of the radon mitigation system is

The Road to Repatriation

By M.Eleanor McGrath

A significant retraction and repatriation happened in the Vatican this 2023 Easter season.

Starting with the historical agreement by the Vatican to return, to its rightful owners Greece, three 2,500-year-old Parthenon marble sculpture fragments. And then, what might be interpreted as Pope Francis' acknowledgement and extension of his first visit to Canada and specific intention to offer an apology to First Nations, Inuit and Metis in 2022, was the Vatican's formal repudiation of the Doctrine of Discovery on March 30.

Working Hard for Wisconsin's Tribal Communities

By: Tammy Baldwin
Wisconsin's tribal communities are central to our state's identity, history, and our future. As your senator, I am proud to stand with our state's tribal communities, taking on the biggest fights and winning.

Everyone in our state's tribal communities should have access to a good paying job, health care they can afford, and the same freedoms their parents and grandparents had. Our tribal communities deserve to have their lands protected and cultures respected.

Supporting our Tribal Workforces

Workers in our state make everything: steel, engines, paper products, ships, rice, beer, brats, and of course, cheese. Our agricultural and manufacturing industries have been the backbone of our state's economy for generations. In the Senate, I went to bat for our manufacturing and agricultural workers and won big.

When we passed the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law, I made sure my Made in America provisions were included in there. Now, when we're building new bridges and roads all across the country, we're using American steel and American concrete to do it.

I also want to ensure that the next generation of students and workers have the skills they need to succeed in Wisconsin manufacturing jobs. That's why I just reintroduced a bill to waive tuition and fees for two years of community and technical college, including tribal technical college.

Working Wisconsinites are the backbone of our state, and I will always fight for initiatives that back up our industries and keep our workers going strong.

Fighting for Health Care Access for Tribal Communities

I'm fighting to make sure that every single person in the state has access to health care, no matter what. Our tribal communities are disproportionately affected by health disparities, and this was magnified during the COVID-19 pandemic. Through the American Rescue Plan Act, we secured the largest investment for Native communities in history, with new resources heading directly to the Indian Health Service.

I will always support our Native health systems to ensure that everyone has accessible and affordable health care in our tribal communities.

Combating Wisconsin's Opioid Epidemic

In our state, the opioid, fentanyl, and heroin epidemic has claimed too many lives, affected countless families, and devastated entire communities.

After holding community discussions across the state with treatment providers, local law enforcement, and families who have lost loved ones, I helped lead successful efforts to push Washington to support Wisconsin's fight against the opioid epidemic that has devastated our communities — including tribal communities.

Just last year, we passed legislation that increases access to opioid overdose reversal drugs and secured $55 million in funding for tribal communities to address the misuse of opioids, fentanyl, cocaine, and methamphetamines.

As our state's tribal communities experience some of the highest number and increases of overdose fatalities from opioids, I promise you that I will always be at the forefront of this fight.

Protecting Tribal Lands

From my first year in Congress through 2015, I worked with the Ho-Chunk Nation to reclaim land that was rightfully theirs. For fifteen years, we fought the bureaucracy. And together, we won.

In the same way, when the Back Forty mining project posed a significant threat to the Menominee River, a place of sacred cultural significance for the Menominee Indian Tribe of Wisconsin, we took on the powers that be again. I stood with tribal leaders to press the Environmental Protection Agency to act promptly and assume permitting authority over the project.

Whether it takes one year or fifteen years, I will always work with tribal communities to take on the big fights to defend their lands and waters.

Combating Climate Change in Tribal Communities

Another important aspect of protecting tribal lands is combating climate change, which has disproportionately affected tribal communities across the country. The Bipartisan Infrastructure Law we passed is a huge opportunity for our tribal communities, and I'm pushing to use those dollars to make sure everyone has clean air, drinkable water, and fertile soil.

And right now I am calling on the Biden Administration to invest in our Great Lakes, because tribes and localities in the Great Lakes region are in dire need of resources to respond to the harmful effects of weather events and climate change.

We need to make sure that tribal communities have the necessary resources to protect their land for future generations.

Serving Our Veterans

Wisconsin is the proud home of servicemembers, veterans, and military families who have made incredible sacrifices for our country. I've worked across party lines to do right by our veterans and make sure they have the care, good paying jobs, and community support that they have earned and deserve. However, some of our most underserved veterans in Wisconsin are those in rural and tribal communities.

That's why I support the CVSO Act, which would provide grants to help with funding and training for state, county, local and tribal government service officers. These officers are often the first point of contact for our veterans to access the benefits and services available to them—particularly in rural and tribal communities, so it's important they have the resources they need to properly support our veterans.

If you sacrificed your life for our country, where you live should not determine whether or not you have access to your much-deserved benefits and resources.

Justice for Tribal Communities

I've also joined bipartisan efforts to pass the Truth and Healing Commission on Indian Boarding School Policies Act, creating a formal commission to investigate, document, and acknowledge past injustices of the federal government's Indian Boarding School Policies. This commission will provide recommendations for Congress to aid in healing for tribal communities and provide victims a platform to speak on their experiences regarding these human rights violations.

Our tribal communities deserve justice and healing from this horrific part of our nation's history, and it is equally important that accountability is established from those involved.

Standing up to Right Wing Extremism

Lastly, I'm determined to stand up to the right wing extremism coming for our freedom to vote and to make our own health care decisions.

Voting rights are the foundation of America's democracy, but time and again we've seen attempts to suppress the vote, gerrymander district lines, and prevent communities from having a say - especially when those communities are voters of color. I'm fighting to stop right wing voter suppression efforts and remove barriers to the constitutionally protected right to vote. I am also a proud advocate for women's freedoms and will continue to fight against the 1849 abortion ban until every Wisconsinite can make their own health care decisions without the government getting involved.

I promise I will keep fighting for our state, no matter who we have to take on to do it.

Old military terms

Here are some military sayings and quotes that started in the Armed Forces that are now commonplace in American conversation. “On the Front Lines” This phrase is rooted in military history . . . “No Man’s Land” ... “Got Your Six” ... “On the Double” ... “Bite the Bullet” “On the Front Lines” “Caught a lot of flak” “SNAFU” “In the trenches” “Roger that”, Semper Fidelis, Semper, Semper!, Reveille, “Retreat Hell! We’ve just got here!”, Semper Gumby

A play on the Marine Corps motto of “Semper Fidelis (Latin for “Always Faithful”), Semper Gumby for Marines means “Always Flexible.” This phrase is often used when you are told to do one thing, then told a different thing, then told to just stand by, then told to go back to doing the original thing. “Semper Gumby, bro.” How do you say hi in the Navy? Ahoy (/əˈhɔɪ/) ( listen (help·info)) is a signal word used to call to a ship or boat. It is derived from the Middle English cry, ‘Hoy!’ .

to indigenous peoples that the Church has heard the importance of addressing the concept referred to as the 'doctrine of discovery.'" Further on, in point No. 6: "The 'doctrine of discovery' is not part of the teaching of the Catholic church. Furthermore, Pope Francis has urged, 'Never again can the Christian community allow itself to be infected by the idea that one culture is superior to others, or that it is legitimate to employ ways of coercing others.'"

A strange coincidence of timing, but possibly one that once shared may bring a floodgate of reflections on the rightful ownership of Indigenous art and artifacts. I had already planned to repatriate an Indigenous basket I purchased on Nov. 27, 2021. Lot No. 65 – Wooden Trencher, Mohawk Basket and Other, offered by Pridham's Auction House in Ottawa was the perfect gift for my brother-in-law Bruce Roundpoint. Only when I placed the three items on the farmhouse table, did I open the covered basket to read:

Mohican Basket

"Bought by Dr. Ted Brasser, Indian specialist of Museum of Man, Ottawa, several years ago in Stockbridge, Massachusetts. Dr.

Brasser is widely considered North American specialist in N.A. Indian basketry. The basket is judged to be circa 1800. Stockbridge figures prominently in Mohican history being the place of the last of the Mohicans were assembled to be removed to their reserve in Wisconsin. Dr. Brasser will be happy to personally authenticate this Mohican basket. Ken Lawless. Dr. Brasser phone # Dunrobin, Ontario"

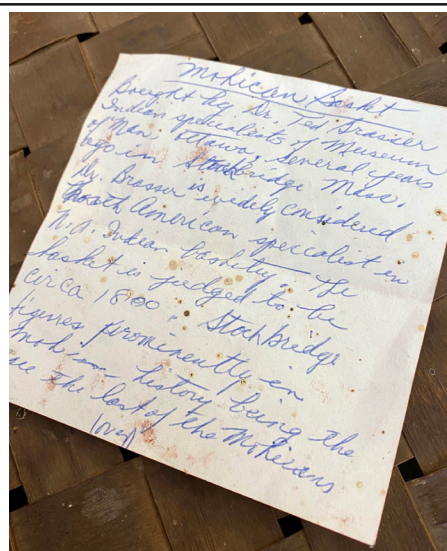

The faint patterned markings over the tightly woven pattern of this intact fragile object offered a sleuthing challenge.

My initial research led me to Bonney Hartley, tribal historic preservation manager, Stockbridge-Munsee Community, Tribal Historic Preservation Extension office in Williamstown, Mass. Thus, I wrote to her on Jan. 11:

"Dear Ms. Hartley. As mentioned in my message I recently purchased at auction a gift for my brother-in-law who is Akwesasne Mohawk. The lot included another beautiful basket ca. 1800s from Stockbridge- with potato-stamp designs. I am interested in returning the basket which I believe is correctly attributed to your Stockbridge-Munsee tribe as it is not appropriate for us to have given its provenance and beauty; of course only if wanted and we were thinking to safely deliver it would be our pleasure as I have lots of American family and it's been too long since I have seen them.

I look forward to hearing from you at your convenience."

Over a year later, including verification by Dr. Ted Brasser this was indeed a Stockbridge Basket, I safely placed the basket in a box, along with tobacco grown at our Springfield Farm in Apple Hill and

Letter that was included with the basket headed out on March 31 with my daughter Alannah. Seven hours, stretches of highway, bad Tims coffee, we finally entered the Taconic Trail before reaching Williamstown, Mass.

The Stockbridge-Munsee Tribal Office on Spring Street is situated in a white clapboard building on the campus of Williams College. I learned so much as I repatriated the Mohican basket to Hartley.

This authenticated potato stamp basket is now one of a small but growing collection, returned only a day after Princeton University returned the bodies of Mohican ancestors who had been part of its collection after being dug up as the university expanded.

An immediate reaction to the word Mohican is founded in James Fenimore Cooper's Last of the Mohicans, both its literary and cinematic description of two Mohicans Chingachgook and Uncas in a drama played out during the expansion of settlers into Native American territory.

It suggests a convenient truth in American psyche: the Mohican Tribe has died away and become the fodder of writers' imaginations belying the importance of their history in the place of treaties, place names, and the birth of the United States of America.

To drive through Mohican territory today is to travel from Ontario, south and east across New York state and into Massachusetts, to follow the Mohawk and Hudson rivers, to pass through the Adirondacks and into the Berkshire mountain range. Possibly even more notable is to witness the incredible wealth of a small little town set in a valley under the guise of the Mount Greylock National Park, a hamlet of no more than 4,700 people in Williamstown.

According to the 2021 American Census, a predominately 83 per cent white population with a 0.3 per cent presence American Indian, with a median household income of US$80,000.

Roughly a further 45-minute drive south is Stockbridge, where you can visit the iconic Norman Rockwell Museum revelling in the illustrator's painted American Dream, Mom and Apple Pie.

Both communities were founded by the Mohicans, members of the Eastern Algonquin Tribe. Their departure came under the encroachment of white European settlers, their alliances with Moravian missionaries, dishonest engagements, and broken promises by fellow settlers in their communities of Stockbridge and Williamstown. Mohicans have been erased them from acknowledgement in the history of these communities of wealthy Americans and their children who attend Williams College.

A tourist would be hard-pressed to know there was a time before the American Revolution, despite many Mohicans fighting and dying in the conflict against the British, and not aligned with the Red Coats like the Mohawks and Joseph Brant, John Johnson, and many other illustrious

The disintegration of the lands of the Mohicans led to the requirement of new alliances with other First Nations such as the Oneida and the Mohawks, as they moved north in New York state to settling finally outside of Green Bay, Wisc. in another brokered relationship with the Menominee, Ho-Chunk, and Oneida. This was not the last of the Mohicans but the start, as they continued to fight New York state on treaty rights. In 2011, the tribe successfully regained 156 acres of land known as the Papscaanee Island Nature Preserve, Hudson River, which was prior to colonization was used for Mohican ceremonies. Despite entering treaties with the newly formed United States, embracing the settlers' religion, political framework, and language to the abandonment of their own practices and land rights, the Mohicans (Muh-he-ka-neew or "people of the continually flowing rivers") or the Stockbridge-Munsee Mohican Community are a handprint of the detrimental relationship all Indigenous, Inuit, American Indian, and Métis have had with colonialization throughout North America. What is the road to repatriation? The uncomfortable, messy acknowledgement we are on territory, both treaty and unceded lands, of First Nations, American Indian, Inuit, and Metis. The requirement is for both bold and gentle actions to find the artifacts that tell their story and return and gift them to their rightful owners. More importantly, we should correct this history – Williamstown was not founded in 1765, it was Mohican territory before the arrival of Christopher Columbus, before the pilgrims, before the wars between European nations and before the Doctrine of Discovery. It is time to learn our North American history and fulfill the words spoken by Mohican John W. Quinney, on July 4, 1854, Reidsville, N.Y.: "Let it not surprise you my friends, when I say, that the spot on which we stand has never been purchased or rightly obtained; and that by justice, human and divine, it is the property now of the remnant of that great people from whom I am descended. They left it in the tortures of starvation and to improve their miserable existence... "For myself and my tribe I ask for justice. I believe it will sooner or later occur. And may the Great and Good Spirit enable me to die in hope," – WANNU-AUCON, the Muh-he-con-

Making Moccasins at Gresham School

Gresham School reached out to CST Coordinator Violet Ready recently to see if she could help the culture club kids make moccasins. Ready was of course honored and excited to teach our youth how to make moccasins. She met with Nancy Buettner, she runs culture club and also the High School Title VII. In addition, we met with Newell Haffner, the Superintendent and K4-5th Grade Principal. He shared with Viloet about funding they put aside for Moccasins, ribbon skirts, beading and more. They both were excited to finally get the plans rolling.

Violet had talked with her Mother Kim Hoffman to see if she would be willing to give me an extra hand. Without a doubt she said yes. We started to put our brains together and come up with a plan. We wanted to make Eastern Woodland moccasins. Hence that is the type of moccasins our ancestors would have made. Ready wanted to make the moccasins as traditionally as possible. No leather punches and no rulers. We used our fingers for measurements, and a tool called an awl for poking holes in our leather and lastly scissors. It was important to Violet to show the youth that everything doesn't have to be done perfectly. We have our own human tools attached to ourselves that we can utilize more often.

They had a total of 10 people all together. They had one staff member from the school Nancy, 7 children, and Kim and Violet. "We had an excellent turn out. I'm very grateful that Gresham School had created a safe environment with open arms to share our beautiful culture with them and their students. I am delighted to continue this new working relationship as a CST coordinator for Stockbridge Munsee Tribe with Gresham School. We hope for more learning opportunities to support our youth." Said Violet.

As they hit the back roads from coast to coast, the Pickers are on a mission to recycle and rescue forgotten relics. Along the way, they want to meet characters with amazing stories and fun items. They hope to give historically significant objects a new lease on life while learning a thing or two about America's past along the way. The Pickers have seen a lot of rusty gold over the years and are always looking to discover something they've never seen before. They are ready to find extraordinary items and hear fascinating tales about them. Protecting yourself and your partner from Trichomoniasis

There has recently been an increase in cases of trichomoniasis in the area. Trichomoniasis is a sexually transmitted infection (STI), caused by a parasite called Trichomonas vaginalis. It is the most common curable STI. About 70% of infected people have no signs or symptoms but when they are present, they are typically different for men and women. The symptoms can start within 5 to 28 days after being infected and can range from mild irritation to severe inflammation. The infection can be spread even if a person does not have symptoms. The parasite is passed from person to person through genital contact- including vaginal, oral or anal sex.

Signs and Symptoms in Women:

- Vaginal discharge that can be clear, white, yellowish or greenish and may be foul smelling

- Genital redness, itching or burning
- Pain with sex or urination
- Lower stomach discomfort

Signs and Symptoms in Men:

- Burning with urination or after ejaculation
- Discharge from the penis
- Itching or irritation inside the penis
- Men often have no symptoms at all

When to see a doctor:

If you have any symptoms of trichomoniasis or if you are aware that a sexual partner is infected, call your primary care provider for an appointment. Oral antibiotics are effective against this parasite and are safe to take during pregnancy. Treatment during pregnancy is important, as it can cause complications, such as increasing the risk of preterm delivery and making it more likely for
